Why to Always Hire a Pro When you Need a New Website

And some of the problems you can encounter when hiring a friend to do the job

Lack of Professionalism

- If you hire a friend to design your new website, don't expect the job to be carried out with a high level of professionalism
- That isn't a criticism, but if web design isn't their day-to-day job they simply won't be able to approach the job with the required care and attention
- They are also much more likely to be lagging behind any deadlines set, as they don't have any reputation to uphold as a business

Lack of Urgency

- It can often be very difficult to your problems addressed when you use a friend to design your website
- Your friend may be upset or not take it well if you are not entirely happy with their design, which can cause some friction and delays to the process
- This can lead to bigger problems, with no urgency to go ahead with making the changes you want. They will also be preoccupied with more important jobs to do as it is not their main task

Why Hire a Pro - Portfolio

- To guarantee that your website is perfected to the highest quality, you can't afford to leave the job to an amateur
- By choosing a professional web designer, you can check out their previous work to be sure of the quality they can produce
- They will also have the experience gained from these previous pieces of work, and will be able to use this to understand the best ways off approaching their work

Care for their work and reputation

- With their company's reputation on the line, a professional designer will always give 100% to each job they take
- They will want to ensure that you are satisfied with their work, as this will more likely lead to you providing a positive review and recommend them in the future
- In the future, you may want to make further changes to your website. With a good experience first time round with a professional, you'll know exactly who to call to get sorted out
